Jack Harkaway's Schooldays

By BRACEBRIDGE HEMYNG

He went away, and Jack said to Emily: "I say, Emmy, open the door just a little bit and sing out loud, Mr. Crawford's wanted; something's happened at Pomona House, and his wife's at the door. He's to make haste."
Jack retreated to the staircase and half way up watched the expected sport through the banisters.
Emily knuckled at the drawing room door, then opened it and delivered the message just as Jack had told her.
"My wife! Dear me! What can have happened?"
"Nothing serious, I hope?" said Mr. Bedington.
"I hope not, indeed. You will excuse my unavoidable absence for a brief space?"
"By all means. Pray ask your wife in."
"Thank you kindly," answered the principal.
Mr. Crawford drew back the door and rushed out. His feet caught in the rope, and he pitched forward, head first into the outstretched bag of soot. He made frantic efforts to remain in the principal.

legs, and when he did he was as black as his hat. Coughing, sneezing and trembling with rage, he tried to get the soot out of his eyes, mouth, ears and nose. During this interval Jack slipped downstairs. He cut away the cord and entered the drawing room, meeting his father in the middle of the room. The latter had been roused by the noise outside and was going to see what it was about.
"Did you send for me?" asked Jack.
"Yes, my-boy. What's all that noise outside?"
"I think it's a drunken sweep."

"A sweep! I won't have such disgraceful proceedings in my house. Open the front door, Jack!"
Jack ran to the front door. Mr. Crawford did look like a drunken sweep.
"Hello, you fellow, what's the meaning of this?" cried Mr. Bedington.
In vain Mr. Crawford tried to speak; he could only splutter out a mouthful of soot.
"Get out! Get out! I'll teach drunken vagabonds like you a lesson!"
As he spoke he kicked the unlucky principal of Pomona House. Kick followed kick, and he ran toward the front door to save himself further pain.
"You go!" said Jack, giving him a parting kick as he passed him.
"The sounder!" said Mr. Bedington, looking around him. "What next, I wonder?"
Little Emily had sunk down on a mat in a corner and was trying in vain to stifle her laughter.
"What a funny girl that is," observed Mr. Bedington. "She's always laughing."

"Yes," said Jack, and he burst into a loud guffaw.
"It seems catching."
"Yes, it's that sweep. He looked so odd. There he is on the lawn, shaking his fist at you. He looks as if he were going to shy stones at the windows. He's talking and going on awfully. See, he's on the garden now."
"So he is," answered Mr. Bedington, remarking that the supposed sweep was in earnest conversation with the gardener, who had just emerged from one of the shrubberies.
Mr. Bedington walked down the steps, intending to order his man to instantly remove the sweep.
"Emmy!" cried Jack.
"Oh, you'll kill me! I know you will!" she answered. "See how I've been laughing. I am quite ill."
"It'll be all found out directly. You'd better come with me into the drawing room, and we'll sit down and look over the album or the stereoscopic slides. Of course, if we are questioned, we know nothing about it."
"Of course not, Jack dear," replied Emily.
They went into the drawing room and sat down on the sofa, with their arms round one another's waist, and amused themselves with a book, taking a sly peep out of the window now and then to see what was going on.

The sweeps meantime came after their sack and wondered how it could have burst. However, they tied it up and swept up the mess and retired, while Mr. Bedington and the victim of Jack's latest joke were in the garden.
Turning to the gardener, Mr. Crawford said: "Hold me tight. Don't let him come near me. I shall do him a mischief if he does. He has dared to kick me from his doors-me, the principal of Pomona House!"
"What does he say, Ford?" inquired Mr. Bedington.
"He says he's a gentleman and his name's Crawford, sir, and if he gets at you he'll kill you for kicking of him," replied the gardener.
"Can it be possible? Why, yes; the features are the features of Mr. Crawford, but the complexion!"
"Is that the result of this diabolical outrage, sir?" interrupted Mr. Crawford.
"My wife is not here. It was all a trick. I fell over a rope and pitched into the soot, which was prepared for me."

"Not with my knowledge. I hope you will acquit me of blame. Come to my dressing room. You shall have a warm bath, and I can lend you some things to put on. What a strange occurrence! It must have been Jack's doing."
"Not a doubt of it, my dear sir," replied Mr. Crawford. "I know him of old. He's always up to his tricks." They walked toward the house, and when they had passed the window Jack popped his head out and exclaimed: "Hello, boys! There goes another guy!"
Mr. Bedington looked in at the drawing room door and said in a stern voice: "Jack, I want you upstairs in my dressing room presently. Bring up the sherry, will you? It is in the chiffonier."

"All right," answered Jack.
In about ten minutes Mr. Crawford emerged from the bath and took a comfortable, and he was just putting on some clothes the valet had laid out for him when Jack and his father came in.
"We have brought you some wine," said Mr. Bedington.
"Ah, wine-sherry-very good!" said the schoolmaster, smacking his lips.
"Jack says he knows nothing about it," continued the boy's father. "It's very odd. The careless fellows must have laid their sack down thoughtlessly, and you have the misfortune to fall into it. However, try a glass of wine." The principal smiled and took a brimming wineglass tendered him by Jack and gazed fondly at it as he said: "Life is a ship tossed upon a stormy ocean. You, my young friend-you are like a young bear who has all his troubles to come. Your health, Mr. Bedington."

He drank the wine off at a gulp and turned pale. Then he drew a long face and put his hand upon the region of his stomach.
"Dear me! What a peculiar taste! Acid is the word for it. I should have said it was vinegar if I had not had your assurance to the contrary."
Mr. Bedington took up the glass and sniffed it. It was vinegar.
"Can I have made a mistake?" said Jack in a tone of apology. "Yes, in my hurry I must have taken up the vinegar bottle instead of that which contained sherry. I ask the gentleman's pardon, I'm sure."
"Go away!" cried his father angrily. "Get out of my sight or upon my word I shall be tempted to box your ears."

Changeable Weather Causes Disease.
Breathe Hyomei and Catch a Cold.
The changeable weather of Spring, with its warm days and cold nights, is responsible for a great increase in the number of cases of catarrh. It is the Hyomei, the only guaranteed treatment for catarrh that cures without stomach dosing, should be used in every home.
For more than a century physicians have been sending persons suffering from catarrh to Egypt, Colorado, or some other place where the pure, healing air would cure the disease. For one person who could take this trip, thousands have been compelled to stay at home and continue their daily toil. To these sufferers who could not change their climatic conditions, we offer Hyomei, a method by which pure air impregnated with Nature's own remedies for the cure of catarrh, can be inhaled by every sufferer in his or her home. Breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, its healing, volatile, antiseptic fragrance reaches the lungs and the passages as no stomach dosing possibly can do. It gives immediate relief and makes lasting cures.
The complete outfit, consisting of the inhaler, medicine dropper, and bottle of Hyomei, costs only one dollar, and extra bottles of Hyomei, if needed, can be procured for fifty cents.
Proof that the Hyomei treatment will do all that is claimed for it is found in the guarantee under which Noyes Drug Store sell it, an agreement to pay back the price, if the purchaser can say the Hyomei has not given satisfaction.

Stallions For Service

SEASON 1905

Our Hackney Stallion BELL BOY is a beautiful dark chestnut, stands 15-3 hands, weighs about 1200 lbs. He has the best of conformation feet and legs. He is sound, can step a good clip, is a pure gaited trotter and without doubt the highest acting stallion in the State. His only get in the State is a chestnut gelding, who won the blue ribbon in the Single Gents' driving class at the Carnival, Feb. 22. Service fee $20 to warrant.

The Clydesdale Stallion ROYAL CONNECTION is a grand specimen of a draft stallion, is 4 years old in May. He is blocky built, with the best of feet and legs, and moves well on them. We believe there is nothing more profitable for the Maine farmer, than to breed their draft mares to such a stallion. Service fee $15 to warrant.

Parties interested in breeding draft or carriage horses for market should visit Maple Grove Farm and see the stallions offered for service. We have one imported Hackney stallion and one imported draft, Clydesdale stallion. They are the best of representatives of their breed and should prove beneficial to intending breeders.

Parties from a distance can be accommodated for meals or over night.

Mares boarded by the week or year at reasonable rates.

These Stallions will stand at Maple Grove Farm, season 1905.

We offer for sale choice young Ayrshire stock both sexes.

REACH THE SPOT.

To cure an aching back, The pains of rheumatism, The tired-out feelings, You must reach the spot—get at the cause.

In most cases 'tis the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Charles Bierbach, stone contractor, living at 2325 Chestnut St., Erie, Pa., says: "For two years I had kidney trouble, and there was such a severe pain through my loins and limbs that I could not stoop or straighten up without great pain, had difficulty in getting about and was unable to rest at night, arising in the morning tired and worn out. The kidney secretions were irregular and deposited a heavy sediment. Doctors treated me for rheumatism, but failed to help me. I lost all confidence in medicine, but Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me so quickly and so thoroughly that I gladly made a statement to that effect for publication. This was in 1898, and during the six years which have elapsed I have never known Doan's Kidney Pills to fail."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Bierbach will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address: Foster-McLure Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50c per box.

BUCKFIELD.

May day was cold, but we have seen colder. I think Memorial day 23 years ago would match it well for cold, and it also snowed some. Thirteen years come the 22nd of this month we woke up with 10 inches of snow on the ground, but it was not very cold. My garden truck was planted.

Fifty years, more or less, a cousin from eastern Massachusetts, who had attended the general court at Boston came down after legislature had dissolved, to visit his backwoods relatives. The 10th of May, I took him from Livermore to Chesterville Mills on wheels. There was much ice and snow—one drift we had to go around. On returning, the 11th, it was shoveled out. In crossing Hillman's ferry, being a high wind, a full cable, and the ferryman came over. On returning, about midway a gale came up, the ferryman lay upon the ropes, reaching over the side of the boat and hung for dear life. The spray blew over myself and horse and froze upon us. We got over, finally, all right, thanks to Providence and a very safe horse. That was a time when we had many excuses to make to our relatives and guest.

How The Boston Journal Presents Clean Sporting News Daily.

This is a baseball year. The enthusiasm of the fans is unlimited and everyone is looking for the best reports of the national games.

Two full pages, covering all the sporting news in New England, is what The Boston Journal presents to its readers every day. Bob Dunbar's sporting chat, the best in every way that is printed, and the cartoons by "Bart," which appear nearly each day, give one an idea of what takes place in the sporting world in a unique and attractive manner. Pictures of men prominent in the sporting world are printed daily, and everything is reprinted in detail from local baseball news to an international game of checkers.

Bob Dunbar has been recognized as an authority on all sports. It is not one branch that he covers, but all, and he is equally familiar with a horse race, golf, tennis, rowing and sailing. There is no news but good news on the two pages of The Boston Journal devoted absolutely to sporting.

The Boston Journal has leaped into great popularity by its bright style, and is an absolutely different paper from the old Journal in its energy and enterprise.

HOW TO AVOID GERM DISEASES.

Strengthen the Stomach and Digestion, and You Will Keep Well.

When there is an epidemic of germ disease, and most diseases are caused by germs, it is the person with a weak stomach who succumbs first.

People with healthy digestion are ordinarily not subject to sickness and can throw off readily any disease germs that enter the system.

Strengthen the stomach and digestive organs with a Mi-o-na tablet before each meal, and every atom of food taken into the stomach will be digested and assimilated, and the whole digestive system made so healthy, clean and sweet that there will be no chance for disease germs to breed.

If you suffer with pains or distress after eating, headache, belching of gases, sour food, a bad taste in the mouth, dizziness, pains in the heart, specks before the eyes, and a general feeling of despondency and weakness, you should get well at once by strengthening the stomach with Mi-o-na. Just one small tablet out of a fifty cent box before eating, and your digestive system will become so strong that you will be the embodiment of good health and spirits, and need fear no germ diseases.

Ask Noyes Drug Store to show you the guarantee under which they sell Mi-o-na; it costs nothing unless it cures.
